

20 YEARS OLD AND STILL GROWING

In this time of uncertainty, we are grateful to be able to continue our practice virtually alongside some talented new partners and lawyers. The firm is proud to represent its clients worldwide in their most consequential disputes in all areas of antitrust, business, and complex litigation, and it can do so more easily than ever through its recently established offices in Wisconsin and California. We also are grateful for the opportunity to work on a wide range of pro bono matters from all three offices, including civil rights and liberties issues such as election protection, prisoners' rights, hate crimes, and disability discrimination. For two decades, Eimer Stahl has been forward-thinking in its approach to legal representation and strategy, while staying true to its original mission: to practice law at the highest level and to achieve the best results most efficiently for our clients. We also have endeavored to create a work environment that promotes civility and inclusion alongside high performance and excellence. We are extremely thankful for the long-lasting partnerships we've made with our clients over the years and are forever grateful for our top-notch lawyers and staff. As we reflect on our successful 20-year history and look forward to the future, we invite you to get to know our skilled and interesting new partners and attorneys.

MEET OUR NEW PARTNERS

BEN WALDIN

Armed with a joint J.D./M.B.A. from Northwestern University, Ben has maintained a thriving antitrust practice since beginning his legal career at Eimer Stahl. Ben focuses on all aspects of antitrust law, including civil antitrust litigation, governmental investigations, and merger clearance reviews. Ben's background in economic analysis allows him to provide unique and valuable insights in both antitrust cases and other complex business disputes. Ben also actively contributes his time to pro bono matters, recently co-chairing a jury trial along with the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights that resulted in a substantial judgment in an employment, discrimination claim against the United States Postal Service that was largely affirmed by the Seventh Circuit. Ben enjoys traveling and learning to cook dishes from places he's visited. He lives in Chicago's Logan Square neighborhood with his wife, son, and two dogs.

RYAN WALSH

Former Wisconsin Chief Deputy Solicitor General Ryan Walsh anchors the firm's Madison office. Ryan focuses his practice on appellate and complex litigation and corporate counseling in a wide variety of areas, including antitrust, constitutional law, corporate law, environmental, ERISA, products liability, and white-collar defense. Ryan has presented appellate and critical trial-court arguments in nearly 20 cases and has managed litigation in courts around the country, including in the Supreme Court of the United States. He has won five best brief awards at both the state and national level. Earlier in his career, Ryan served as a law clerk on the U.S. Supreme Court for the Honorable Antonin Scalia and on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit for the Honorable Diarmuid F. O'Scannlain. Ryan was named to Forbes' "30 Under 30: Law and Policy" list in 2017. Outside work, Ryan busies himself with family life, as father to six children nine-years-old and under. Ryan enjoys reading, working outdoors, and amateur powerlifting.

MEET OUR NEW LAWYERS

SARAH KINTER

Born and raised in Rockville, Maryland, Sarah, who joins the firm as a Stakeholder, graduated from Princeton University summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, with a degree in the History of Art. Sarah's post-college work at a small New York law firm—where she was able to combine her passion for art and interest in helping others by assisting dozens of young international artists apply for visas—sparked her desire to attend law school. Sarah pursued her J.D. at the University of Chicago Law School where she received the Joseph Henry Beale Prize for Legal Research and Writing, served as President of Spring Break of Service, and graduated with high honors. She was also active in the Law School's civil rights clinic. Since starting at Eimer Stahl, Sarah has focused her practice on antitrust litigation, in addition to serving pro bono clients in prisoner rights and voting rights cases. In her free time, Sarah enjoys hiking, playing violin, and watching Jane Austen adaptations.

EMILY SULLIVAN

Emily joins the firm as a Stakeholder. She graduated with high honors, Phi Beta Kappa, from Swarthmore College, where she double-majored in English Literature and Political Science. Emily later attended the University of Chicago Law School, where she graduated with honors and served as Director of Women's Initiatives for the Law Women's Caucus. Her love of reading, political science, and civil justice are what inspired her to pursue a career as a lawyer. Currently, she focuses her practice on national environmental and products liability litigation as well as administrative law. Originally from Delaware, Emily now calls Chicago home and in her free time enjoys working on crossword puzzles, experimenting with new recipes in the kitchen, and hanging out with her Australian Shepherd, Sadie.

ROBERT E. DUNN

Rob joins the firm as Of Counsel to help build the foundation of the firm's new west coast office in San Jose, California. Rob brings over ten years' experience representing a variety of clients in high-stakes commercial litigation disputes before the United States Supreme Court, various federal and state appellate courts and federal district courts. Before private practice, Rob clerked on the U.S. Supreme Court for the Honorable Clarence Thomas and on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit for the Honorable Diarmuid F. O'Scannlain. Inspired by his theology studies at Fuller Theological Seminary, and his experience as a college pastor with InterVarsity Christian Fellowship, Rob maintains a thriving pro bono practice largely focused on defending religious liberty, representing both individuals and various religious institutions. Additionally, Rob has defended several individuals in removal proceedings before the Board of Immigration Appeals and the Ninth Circuit. Rob lives in San Jose with his wife Esther and their three children, where he enjoys teaching his kids to ski, golf, and cheer on the local sports teams. Rob, an Eagle Scout, also seeks to pass on his love of the outdoors to his family and the other boys in his son's Cub Scout troop.

JOHN ADAMS

A decorated military veteran and former Seventh Circuit law clerk, John recently joined the firm as a Stakeholder and will split his time between the Madison and Chicago offices. John focuses his practice on antitrust, appellate, and commercial litigation for a variety of clients across multiple industries. Before attending law school, John served as an infantry officer in the United States Marine Corps where he led two platoons in combat operations throughout the Middle East. John's dedication to service continued after the Marine Corps at Operation Gratitude, a military support nonprofit based in Los Angeles. After returning to the Midwest, John received his joint J.D./M.B.A. from Northwestern University. He later went on to serve as a judicial clerk on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit for the Honorable Amy Coney Barrett and then entered private practice as an associate at an Am Law 25 firm. A Milwaukee native, John is a die-hard fan of all things Wisconsin – Packers, Bucks, and Brewers – and enjoys spending his time reading, hiking through national parks, and training for his next marathon.

AMY MILLER

Amy, a Wisconsin native, joins Eimer Stahl's Madison office as Of Counsel after several years of public practice. In 2016, after working as a legal intern with the Wisconsin Department of Justice, Amy was hired by the state to serve as Assistant Wisconsin Solicitor General. At the Solicitor General's office, Amy was involved in drafting briefs for dozens of successful appeals ranging from environmental disputes to criminal matters. As a result, she is well versed in litigating high-stakes matters in the United States Supreme Court, federal courts of appeals, the Wisconsin Supreme Court, and the Wisconsin Court of Appeals. Since joining Eimer Stahl, she has focused her practice on appellate litigation, contract disputes, and corporate governance. Amy also has volunteered her time working for multiple legal aid organizations in Wisconsin and Indiana, helping to provide legal services to low income individuals and individuals with disabilities. Outside of the office, Amy enjoys exploring Wisconsin's lakes, parks, and trails with her husband and daughter.

JOHN D. TRIPOLI

J.D. Tripoli joins Eimer Stahl as Of Counsel in the firm's Madison and San Jose offices, bringing over ten years' experience as a litigator, regulatory counsel, and high-level legal advisor. Through key leadership positions in government, including chief legal counsel to the Governor of Wisconsin, J.D. has managed high profile complex litigation, protected businesses from regulatory overreach, and spearheaded the appointments of over three dozen Wisconsin judges. Prior to J.D.'s government work, he defended large, privately held and publicly traded companies in highly regulated industries and in a wide range of disputes, including insurance litigation, environmental compliance actions, federal and state civil rights agency investigations, employee misclassification lawsuits, and non-compete claims. J.D. also clerked on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit for the Honorable Michael B. Brennan. A native of Huntington Beach, California, J.D. enjoys spending as much time as possible outdoors with his wife and three (soon to be four) children—preferably anywhere warm. J.D. also enjoys playing guitar, ranking rock/pop/folk artists, and poring over major and minor league baseball stats to improve his fantasy baseball teams.
