Mr Eimer is a trial lawyer who has acted as a trial counsel in numerous US federal and state courts and arbitration settings. He specialises in complex commercial litigation with emphasis on antitrust litigation and is one of three antitrust lawyers in Illinois to receive Chambers & Partners' 'tier one' rating. Mr Eimer has played a principal role in dozens of grand jury investigations and criminal and civil antitrust cases, including several in which he has been national lead counsel for all defendants. Recently, he successfully represented a client in a grand jury investigation of the industrial gas industry, recovered millions of dollars in antitrust overcharges on behalf of a Fortune 100 client from parcel tanker shippers, and defended against monopolisation charges brought against a client by the world's largest producer of steel.

Mr Eimer also represents clients in a broad variety of complex commercial matters. For example, he currently represents CITGO Petroleum Corporation in connection with the numerous civil actions claiming that an additive to gasoline is defective and contaminates ground water. Mr Eimer has been lead counsel for a group of dairy cooperatives, led by Land O'Lakes Inc, in a complex series of adversary proceedings surrounding the bankruptcy of an oil refinery owned by cooperatives. Mr Eimer was one of two lead counsels for the lending banks in connection with a massive bank fraud and surrounding adversary proceedings in the bankruptcy resulting from the detection of the fraud.

Mr Eimer left Sidley & Austin in 2000, where he was a member of the executive committee and general counsel.

“It is impossible to buy entry into

The International Who's Who of Competition Lawyers and Economists”

Who's Who Legal and Global Competition Review are delighted to publish the eighth edition of The International Who's Who of Competition Lawyers and Economists. Based on ten years of research, canvassing and analysing the opinions of clients and competition specialists from around the world, our survey has revealed 517 lawyers in 39 countries who can truly be considered leaders in competition law. Reflecting the increasing significance of economics in policy and enforcement, we also identify 151 leading competition economists based in 22 jurisdictions.

The names and contact details of all the professionals whose nominations are accepted by the editor are listed without charge. It is impossible to buy entry into The International Who's Who of Competition Lawyers and Economists. Those who are accepted for listing are invited, but not required, to supply a professional biography and photograph, which will be published upon payment of a fee.

We hope that you will find this publication useful and informative. If you do, it is due to the hundreds of people who helped us in the research, and we would like to sign off by thanking them for their kindness, helpfulness and insight, which made it a pleasure to be involved in this undertaking.
